FRIDAY EVENING, JUNE 30, 1882.

Slander, Defamation and Blackmail. The slanderer is to be abhorred, and his dupe, who being misled makes herald to his lies, is to be both pitied and despised. A suit for slauder has ceased to be creditable, and the only shield now against slander and defamation is an elevated sentiment and sound judgment to guard men against its insidious influences. Pollok says:

"Rumor was the messenger
Of defamation, and so swift that none
Could be the first to tell an evil tale;
And was withal so infamous for lies, That he who of her sayings on his creed The fewest entered, was deemed wisest man, The fool, and many who had credit, too. For wisdom, grossly swallowed all she said, Unsifted; and although at every word, They heard her contradict herself, and saw Hourly they were imposed upon and mocked, Yet still they ran to hear her speak, and stared And wondered much, and stood aghast, and said It could not be: and while they blushed for shame At their own faith, and seemed to doubt, believed. And whom they met, with many sanctions, told— So did experience fail to teach; so hard It was to learn this simple truth, confirmed At every corner by a thousand proofs. That common fame most impudently lied. Twas slander filled her mouth with lying words; Slander, the foulest whelp of sin."

Stories first heard at a mother's knee are not wholly forgotten; a little spring that never quite dries up on your journey through scorching years.

Every one in this world has his or her share of troubles and trials. Let us then R. try as much as we are able not to increase the burden of any by as much as the weight of a straw.
